Marion Tearfully Bids Farewell To Former Townsman

Actual Hour of Interment In Receiving Vault Will Be 4 P. M.—Mrs. Harding Brave as Final Ordeal Nears—Bier Is Viewed in Humble Harding Home by Continual Stream of People—Town Is Thronged, But Silent.

(By The Associated Press.)
MARION, Ohio, Aug. 10.—Slow moving throngs crowded the streets at Marion again in the last public honors Warren G. Harding will know before the doors of the ivy grown vault close upon him. It seemed that not alone Ohio, but every surrounding state had sent legions here to pass beside the bier or to stand silent as the dead President was carried to his rest.

Congested sidewalks flanked Centre street where the home of his father, sheltering the great son, again, stands behind a glowing wall of flowers. On the north side, down the tree-lined stone walk that leads to the home, a closely crowded line, kept in place by guardsmen, set a way for blocks. The far end was down before the draped courthouse and it moved away from the house of sadness instead of towards it.

Hundreds on hundreds came to join the gathering. Every hour they came faster than the slow movement past the bier could absorb them.

A thin handful seemed the line of those coming from the quiet room around which the sorrowful heart of all Americans centered today. Thousands must be turned away almost certainly, though hours still intervened before the simple funeral train was formed.

Word came of special trains sweeping towards Marion from all directions. Motor cars came rolling in over every road, bringing added scores to join the silent company gathered sadly where so short a time ago thousands similarly gathered in noisy acclaim to the man who will bear no more cheering. Up every side street, the machines were massed at the curbs in almost endless rows. Here and there a car on business that had to do with the funeral rite moved swiftly, or a troop laden truck moved with its freight about some task of watching. Against the curbs, the young guards stood widely spaced to keep the crowds on the sidewalk.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 10.—The day when human eyes would look their last on the face of Warren Gamaliel Harding, 29th President of the United States, dawned with many who loved him still waiting to pass slowly beside the bier resting in his father's home. Before the shadows of evening steal across the wide peaceful fields where he was born, the gates of his tomb will have closed behind him and the long, long way of his funeral ended.

In gracious kindness the sorrowful woman, who longed for the end of the public ordeal that has stretched into more than a week of ceremonial and pageant, let the people of the nation, the state and the town that claimed him as its son might testify to their grief, set aside her own wish to be alone with her dead at the last.

Throughout the hours of darkness last night the casket which held him lay open in the humble home and all were welcomed to pass beside it again. Today the face of the dead chief was made visible for the last time to the "boys" who knew him as "the boss" in the offices of the Marion Star when he sat there as editor. A few others came privately to the casket because of their close association in the bygone years with the dead. In the depths of her sorrow, Mrs. Harding has not failed of the thoughtful kindness that has marked her every action before and since death came to her husband in San Francisco. Last night it seemed that every man, woman and child in Marion, stood long on the shaded quiet street to pay this last honor to the dead. No man knew with exactness how many thousands had walked through the modest room, where casket lay and casket was closed, to see the face of the man on whom the peaceful face under the glass. There was a hush of mourning about the streets despite the hundreds waiting to enter and other

Danville's Memorial Service This Afternoon At 5 o'Clock

The Memorial Service to the late President Harding to be held at Main Street Methodist church at five o'clock this afternoon at which time the community will pay him tribute promises to be largely attended. It is expected that there will be a large attendance from the downtown section as the stores are closing at four o'clock and many are planning to go early to the church in order to secure a seat. Committees in charge of the tribute service announced that no chance would be made in the programme as printed yesterday. The service is expected to last approximately one hour.

Legion members are again reminded that they should meet at the Municipal Building at half past four o'clock in order to march as a unit to the church where special seats are being reserved for them.

The city banks closed at eleven o'clock this morning and the postoffice will be closed at four o'clock for the rest of the day.

Some form of religious service is being held in every city and town of

The city council meets tonight at eight o'clock for the transaction of its usual monthly docket of business. It is expected that there will be informal discussion of the projected repaving of part of Craghead street although this matter has not yet been placed before the finance committee for a definite recommendation. It is understood that the public works committee favors the work being done this year if the finance committee can find the means of paying for the work which would be about $20,000.

John Miller, veteran member of the Richmond fire department, is in Danville on a visit to E. J. Berkeley, at 762 Lee street. Mr. Miller was found early this morning at the Patton street fire station drawn there by a rather natural interest in local fire fighting facilities. He was wearing a gold medal which was presented to him by the city of Richmond following his retirement on a pension after serving as a member of the department for 53 consecutive years. He withdrew from the department March 1st, 1919. His recollections go back to the day when city firemen sought to combat conflagrations with buckets alone. Later came the old-fashioned hand pumps and then the horse drawn steam engines. Mr. Miller who is 79 years old, bears his age remarkably well and is quite active.

Rev. C. B. Austin, of Washington, who has just brought to a close a successful revival at Clover Bottom Baptist church in Halifax county, was a visitor in the city this morning en route to Greensboro where he will preach Sunday. The revival at Clover started last Sunday and with two services daily continued for five days and during that time there have been thirty new additions, eighteen of them coming forward yesterday. Rev. Mr. Austin stated this morning that it was one of his most successful revivals. For the past fifteen years he has been conducting such meetings at intervals in this section and consequently is widely known.

News of a severe hail storm Wednesday night which did extensive damage to crops near Sago, in Franklin county reached here this morning. Crops of at least twenty farmers are said to have been damaged considerably, especially tobacco. One farmer who was in Danville this morning said that the loss would be heavy. Among those whose crops were damaged by the hail were J. E. Fuller, J. H. Gregory, J. H. Palmer, W. C. Arrington, W. A. Arrington, W. B. Muse, Henry Walker and J. M. Campbell.

Special services will be held tonight at the Aetz Chayim Synagogue on Wilson street as a mark of respect for President Harding, who will be buried this afternoon. The services will start at 7 o'clock promptly.

The new school building which is being erected in Tunstall district, just beyond the old site of Hilltop Sanatorium, is nearing completion and will be ready for use by the opening of fall term of school. The situation and surroundings are adaptable to extensive development and being near the city limits and street car service, the new school house will no doubt become a meeting place for county and town people to enjoy many social features of the school.

The official canvass of the vote in Danville in Tuesday's primary was made today by the commissioners of election. The final official figures showed little change. C. R. Warren gained two votes over the first unofficial returns and R. T. Carter lost ten votes. The official figures show J. B. Anderson, 875; R. T. Carter, 321; H. D. Shepherd, 572; B. S. Warren, 557; C. R. Warren, 278. By adding these to the official vote of Pittsylvania county the following final correct figures are seen: Anderson, 2,377; Carter, 4,267; Shepherd, 3,881; B. S. Warren, 1,812; C. R. Warren, 4,267.

South Dakota Gas Dealers Cut Price

PIERRE, S. D., Aug. 10.—A number of independent oil dealers cut their 26-cent price for gasoline 4 cents today as the first move to match Gov. McMaster who yesterday ordered the State Oil station at Mitchell to sell gasoline at 15 cents a gallon. The prevailing price in the State hitherto has been 26 cents.

The final effect of the entrance of the State into the gasoline business is still a matter of speculation as the Standard Oil Company has not announced its stand. The big companies, it is thought, however, must at least meet the cut of the independents.

While the State itself has only one gasoline station, which can hardly supply the 150,000 automobiles in South Dakota with fuel, to say nothing of trucks and tractors, there is talk of forming associations to buy gasoline in carload lots, as the governor asked to have done. Independent dealers were inclined to scoff at that, saying a shortage of tank cars would make delivery impossible before October or November.

Meanwhile the governor, who is attending the late President's funeral, is letting his move to back his contention that gasoline can be sold profitably at 16 cents a gallon speak for itself. And the people who are buying at this price smile and are content.

A NATION MOURNS

The Prayer at the Graveside

(By The Associated Press.)
MARION, Aug. 10.—Rev. Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Harding is a member delivered the following prayer at the funeral for President Harding at the cemetery:

"Almighty God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, giver of every good and every perfect gift in whom there is no variableness or shadow of turning, we come with confidence to Thee even in such a time as this, because we know that Thou art not only a God of greatness and a power but also a God of mercy and of Love.

"We thank Thee for our Land and Nation and for Thy guiding hand upon it from its conception until this hour. We thank Thee for what this man, our friend and brother, has meant in the progress and development of our Nation. We feel that he, as in intermission of him, whom we called Master and Lord, has laid down his life in the service of his country and we believe that he has received Thy 'Well Done.'"

"May Thy blessing rest upon him who assumes the vast responsibility of taking the helm and guiding the future of this land of ours. May Thy blessing rest upon our nation and its people and upon our city in this time of great bereavement. Give Thy blessing to the aged father who offered his own life in the service of his country and now has given this noble son. Sustain and support him in this great trial and sorrow and guide his feet in the path of peace until he shall reach the land beyond the grave where he can meet again the dear ones whom he has loved and lost.

"Bless the other members of the family and may they feel Thy nearness. May this special blessing rest on Mrs. Harding, the wife of our loved dead who lives to mourn the loss of this devoted companion who journeyed with her up the steps of life until they reached the heights together. May she now hear Thy say: 'Fear thou not for I am with thee. Be not dismayed for I will help thee, yea I will uphold thee with the right arm of my righteousness.'"

"May she know that the eternal God is her refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms.

"When these solemn rites are over and she goes back to walk the way of life alone, may she realize that she is not alone for Thou has said to all Thy children 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee' and may her noble example of confidence and trust in God be an inspiration to all those who are called to walk with her along the 'via dolorosa.'"

"May the peace of God descend

Service For McKinley Here 22 Years Ago Similar To That Set For Today

The community memorial service to the late President Harding to be held today has many points of similarity with the memorial service which was held at noon in Danville on Thursday, September 19, 1901. It is interesting to note that in the McKinley service which also was held at Main Street Methodist church, two Danville ministers who are still living here took a part. One of them is Rev. Cleveland Hall, D. D., rector emeritus of Epiphany church who will today offer the invocation and the other is Rev. J. C. Holland, included in the musical program of the McKinley service were two hymns described as being favorites of the slain President and which also were favorites of the late President Harding. Both will be sung this afternoon. They are "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

Examination of the files of The Bee shows the following account of the McKinley service contained in the issue of the paper of Thursday, September 19:

Rev. J. Cleveland Hall read a passage from the scriptures in his own inimitable and impressive style and with much eloquence and fervor.

He was followed by the Rev. J. A. Spencer, who delivered a powerful prayer for strength to the living people and the world to bear with fortitude the sweat of anguish.

"Someday Some Time We'll Understand," was sung by J. C. Van Pelt with much fervor. This was not the least of the beautiful musical numbers that were part and parcel of the impressive service.

Rev. T. B. Thomas, D. D., followed Mr. Van Pelt with an address which must have been heard to be appreciated. The great earnestness of the orator thrilled the vast audience into an awed quiet. His words rang true in the hearts of his listeners as the great thoughts within him ascended in supplication to the throne before which the world was bowed in misery. He said that the world did homage to Mr. McKinley not because he was the president, not because he was an orator, a statesman, a diplomat, but because of the character and manhood of the man himself. Dr. Thomas' address will long be remembered by his hearers as pathetic appeal to the Almighty to preserve the nation from the spirit of anarchy. Rev. J. C. Holland followed Dr. Thomas with a prayer.

The choir assisted by the congregation sang, "Nearer My God to Thee." This ended the service.

After the benediction by Rev. T. B. Thomas, D. D., the people dispersed noiselessly out into the sun shine again to begin a new era under a new executive.

HONORARY PALL BEARERS.

ON BOARD THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN AT OKRON, O., Aug. 10.—President Coolidge this morning received a message from George Christian, secretary to former President Harding, saying that it was Mrs. Harding's wish that cabinet ministers and leaders in the House and Senate act as honorary pall-bearers this afternoon.

RADICALS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM LYNCHERS

(By Chicago Tribune Service.)
TOLEDO, O., Aug. 9.—Having narrowly escaped with their lives from a lynching party miles outside Toledo last night, Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Ross, New York radicals, sped homeward today. Nor probable ever again will either preach radicalism hereabouts.
Following a mob attack on the character of the late President Harding, Ross and his wife, who had been in Toledo a week making radical meetings on downtown street corners were dragged from their platform and rushed in an automobile to a lonely spot near White House where they were taken from the car and led to a tall tree. A noose rope was thrown over a limb. The prisoners became hysterical at the juncture and Mrs. Ross, screaming and pleading for her husband, was taken some distance from the scene.
The while Ross pleaded for mercy, the noose was dropped over his head. As it was tightened around his neck, he begged to be allowed to explain himself. Given permission, he told the two score men gathered in a circle about him that he and his wife lived in New York and had been to Toledo as organizers for the Chicago office of a political organization.
As he was finishing his explanation, one of the members of the crowd produced an American flag. Ross grabbed and kissed it and implored to be allowed to show his Americanism. He then voluntarily pledged his allegiance to the flag and renounced the party he represented. Thereupon the noose was removed from Ross' neck and Mrs. Ross was returned to the scene. She also kissed the flag and pledged allegiance to it, and when they returned to the car, east at once and to forego visiting Toledo ever again, they were released.
On Monday night, it is said, Ross first spoke bitterly against the late president. Last night he disregarded a warning not to repeat his remarks and a riot in which Ross' sympathizers emerged second best followed the radical speakers seizure.

LAWN FETE AT THE SUNNYSIDE HOME

The entertainment known as "An Evening with Hiawatha" arranged for the porticoes and lawns of the Sunnyside Home by Mrs. C. K. White and others was attended and enjoyed by a large number of people last night and proved both interesting as an entertainment and successful from a financial standpoint, the Home being the beneficiary. The lawn was attractively lighted with incandescents draped with crepe tissue in varied hues, besides the illumination from the portico and the brightly lighted building.
A program of music and readings was given by well known singers and reciters and instrumental music was contributed by a local orchestra. The menu included Indian corn boiled on the ear, and many of the costumes and decorations had the colorful touches suggestive of the aborigines. Altogether the affair was enjoyable as well as helpful to this splendid institution and its efficient and faithful director.

ARTIST GIVES HINTS ON MIXING TONES WITH TEMPERAMENT

MISS HANNAH ORSECK DESIGNING A GOWN IN BATIK

BY MARIAN HALE
(Special to The Bee.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Batiks may be a fad to some, but to Hannah Orseck they are decidedly worth while.
From an artist interested in the unusual and colorful, wondering where the next month's rent was coming from, Miss Orseck has developed into a business woman operating on a large scale, wondering where to get enough employees.
Her skill in originating designs at once bizarre and subtle have made her work distinctive, but it is to her knack of producing harmony out of a medley of colors that she attributes her success.
"I believe many women have lost their color instinct because they have worn dark colors so long," she says. "For instance it is a common belief that blonds can't wear red."
"On the contrary I find the rich tones of red give to the blond the fire and color that is lacking in her temperament and they clash with the dark woman."
The one color that is universally becoming is green—in some tone or other. Yet comparatively few women wear it, while blue, which is the most trying color there is except in the navy shades, is regarded as the color every woman can wear.
The Right Guide.
Your color should match your temperament instead of your eyes, she believes. Hence, only spunky, peppy people should wear yellow. She believes we should take our color schemes from the seasons.
"In the fall nothing is more appropriate than the russet browns, reds and yellows of the autumn foliage while in the spring we turn instinctively to the colors that suggest life and hope and a new, fresh outlook," she goes on. "If we followed nature's leads we would never be out of key with our surroundings."

The bell was tolled on the occasion of Lincoln's funeral in 1865 while the funeral procession of General Grant was passing in 1885. KIWANIANS HOLD MEMORIAL MEET

The Danville Kiwanians held a Harding memorial meeting last night at the Country Club. A large picture of the late president, surmounted by an American flag, was hung in the dining room. Prof. C. G. Evans of R. M. I. made the memorial address.

The meeting was the regular semi-monthly meeting and the attendance was large.

One of the features of the evening was the reading of a letter from Miss Margaret Mason, of the Community Welfare Association in which she outlined the work of the association. In one paragraph she happened to mention the fact that a number of children under the care of the organization were unable to have their tonsils removed because they did not have the $5 fee necessary. When this part of the letter was read several Kiwanians jumped to their feet and said that they wished to contribute this $5. In this manner about $30 was raised.
H. M. Martin introduced Prof. C. G. Evans in a brief talk. Prof. Evans outlined the life and work of Harding, telling of the outstanding accomplishments of the late administration and paying a warm tribute to the character and personality of the dead chief executive. Harding was charter member of the Marion, Ohio, Club.

Via Is Fined But Promptly Appeals Mayor's Decision

A continuation of the Via-Fretwell case occupied the attention of Mayor Wooding this morning. Via was fined $10 and costs for the State on a charge of creating a nuisance by refusing to turn on the water supply to the apartment rented by Julian Fretwell on the second floor of his residence. Via had been convicted of the nuisance on yesterday but had been given a chance to abate the nuisance by turning on the water, no fine being imposed. This he refused to do on advice of his attorneys. An appeal was noted this morning.

The session was taken up mostly with another long battle of arguments by the various lawyers interested in the case. Despite argument presented for Fretwell's side, the court held to its original decision and imposed the fine. The fine was for the nuisance and not for a contempt charge as some had understood. Another angle of the case now arises. Both decisions—the one in favor of Via in the civil court and one favoring Fretwell in the mayor's court—have been appealed. As the result of Via's firm stand in refusing to turn on the water and Fretwell's occupation of the house, the situation will continue to present a nuisance. If both sides continue their firm stand, the same conditions will exist until the matter is decided by the upper court. Whether steps will be taken to abate the nuisance has not been definitely stated. It was announced in court this morning that a conference will be held and the law reviewed. It is probable that a new warrant will be issued each day until the nuisance is abated. But the question now is what will Fretwell do? One side claimed that Fretwell must vacate while the other contended that Via must turn on the water. The health department will probably take such action in the matter as is deemed best. However, the opinion of the court is being awaited.

Mr. Fretwell has been striving to bring about action by the city water department but no action has been taken by its officials. The city is holding Mr. Via responsible for payments on water and is not interested in what happens until the matter has passed through Mr. Via's hands. Officials claim that they are not the right to go into the premises of Mr. Via and take any action.

Virginia Bows In Grief On Burial Day Of Harding

(By The Associated Press.) RICHMOND, Aug. 10.—Virginia, older sister in the great family of states, bowed in grief today as W. G. Harding was placed in guarding arms under the rose crowned sod, where he first saw the light of day. Under a proclamation of Governor E. Lee Trinkle, the day assumed the aspect of a legal holiday in the state, but only in the sense that business was at a standstill. Governor Trinkle, in his proclamation called on Virginia to "proclaim in prayer and pay homage of love and respect to the memory of the beloved President." This everyone of them did. Memorial services were held in virtually every church in the state and public houses held public manifestations of public grief. Virginia, "Mother of Presidents," mourned the late occupant of the White House.

Day Is One Of Mourning and Prayer In Nation

(By The Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The nation will pay the tribute of silence to Warren G. Harding as his body is entombed today. From coast to coast and from border to border every wheel of the federal government and practically every one of industry and commerce will stand still. Theatres and other amusement places will be closed, baseball games postponed and other events of sport deferred. As recommended by President Coolidge in his proclamation, officially announcing the death of the late President the day will be one of mourning and prayer. Thousands will gather at their places of worship for services as church bells toll their mournful message of a beloved chieflain laid to rest.

Gary Mills Start New Shift Monday

GARY, Ind., Aug. 10.—Beginning next Monday morning, one of Warren G. Harding's cherished wishes will be put into effect when a unit of blast furnace workers in the great Gary mills of the United States Steel Corporation will be put on an eight-hour workday. Mr. Harding had made a request to the steel industry to drop the twelve-hour day.

Approximately 500 more men are to be employed to effect the change from a twelve-hour day. It was forecast that by August 18 open hearth workers also will be on an eight-hour day. Within a year, it is expected, every worker in the industry in Gary will be working only eight hours a day. A similar arrangement, it was said, was to be made in the Carnegie Steel Company.

ANGRY TRAFFIC COP QUILTS JOB WHEN CRITICIZED

WINCHESTER, Aug. 10.—Stephens City, eighth mile south of here, has no traffic cop today because Maurice Hillyard, the only police officer of the town, resigned at a meeting of the town council last night, after he had heard his personal character assailed on the floor of the council chamber by Charles I. Brumback, head of a citizens committee that requested modification of the automobile laws of the town.

It was understood that Brumback recently ran afoul of the traffic officer, charged with exceeding the limit of 15 miles an hour and was not in an appeal to the Circuit Court of Frederick county when Stephens City authorities refunded his fine and costs. Brumback and a group of night riders appeared last night at the council meeting, and while advocating modification of the traffic laws, he said, had brought the town into disrepute and branded as a "speed trap." Brumback took occasion to make some remark about Officer Hillyard. The policeman happened to be listening at a window, and while the question of changing the automobile laws was being discussed by the town fathers Hillyard sallied into the room and in a dramatic fashion, tendered his resignation. Mayor S. M. Stickley and councilmen tried to persuade Hillyard to withdraw his resignation, saying he was being deceived by the citizens and officials and citizens to enforce the laws, and that he had given entire satisfaction. But Hillyard was obstinate, and the council finally accepted the officer's resignation.

The town, which has been enforcing speed regulations rigorously for some months, was at the mercy of "speed hounds" today but efforts were being made, it was said, to induce Hillyard to don his uniform and badge of authority again. Large numbers of persons have been fined at Stephens City in the last year for what they said seemed the most trivial and technical violations of speed laws, but the authorities claim they have been acting only to protect citizens of the community from accident and perhaps death.

James F. White Dies Near City

The death took place at 6:30 o'clock this morning of James F. White at his home not far from Pumpkin Creek after an illness of several weeks. Mr. White who was a Confederate veteran was 88 years of age and two weeks ago became critically ill. He had been in bed for a long time and his health was failing. He was afflicted with a heart disorder. Mr. White has lived for the past four years near the city moving there from near Blanch, N. C. where he had for many years owned and operated successfully a farm. He was a native of Caswell County, N. C. When the call to the colors came at the opening of the Civil War Mr. White was among the first to respond and he fought through the war in Rhinehart's company, one of his comrades in arms being Capt. B. T. Fretwell, of this city. Deceased was married few years ago to Mrs. James M. Slade, who survives with two sons, J. F. White, Jr., of Quick, N. C., and Miss Anna White, of near the city.

Mr. White was a member of the Purley, N. C. Methodist church in which he had been an active worker until failing health compelled him to relinquish it. The funeral will be held from the church at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, interment to be made nearby.

Mr. White is also survived by three step-children, Mrs. S. K. Cobb, of Danville, T. D. Slade and Miss Lou Slade of the county.

CONVICTION OR ACQUITTAL

RICHMOND, Aug. 10.—Regardless of the outcome of the trial of Robert L. Garrett for the murder of Rev. E. S. Pierce in Cumberland county, Milton P. Bonifant, acting commonwealth's attorney, today stated that Larkin Garrett, jointly indicted for the murder, will be brought to trial. These cases will not be decided except by a verdict of conviction or acquittal. Mr. Bonifant said, "Larkin Garrett's case will not be nolle prossed, and these cases will be retried until there is either conviction or acquittal, should there be a hung jury in either case." Testimony in the two cases will be the same, except that the prosecution will bring out testimony that Robert Garrett is alleged to have threatened to "get" Mr. Pierce before the fatal meeting June 5 last.

Henry County Negress Kills Former Suitor

(Special To The Bee.) MARTINSVILLE, Aug. 10.—Ben Smith, colored, was shot and killed yesterday by Allie Spencer, also colored, the shooting taking place at the home of the negroes near Horsepasture in Henry county. The woman was arrested three quarters of an hour after the shooting and is now in the Henry county jail pending a hearing before Magistrate Shelton. The arrest was made by Sheriff H. L. Turner.

Little is known of the facts leading directly up to the difficulty preceding the shooting, but Smith came to the house to see the negress. It is said she did not desire his company and ordered him out of the house. He refused to go and upon further orders determined not to be thwarted, attacked the woman, it is said. During the scuffle, he procured his pistol and beat her about the head with it. The weapon fell to the floor during the scuffle and the negress managed to get possession of it. As Smith made his last plunge at her, she pulled the trigger as the pistol pointed at his head and fired. The negro fell to the floor, the bullet proving fatal in a short time the woman was under arrest and had told her tale. It is said that the man paid his attentions to the woman some time ago. On yesterday he evidently desired to renew old acquaintanceship and went to the house to be turned down and ordered out, this resulting in his attacking her and getting a pistol ball through the head.

Separate Action By Allies Has Not Become Necessary

(By The Associated Press.) LONDON, Aug. 9.—The net results of today's cabinet council which discussed the terms of Great Britain's reply to France and Belgium with regard to German reparations appears to be that the negotiations between the allies are proceeding and that no approach has yet been made to anything like separate action by the allies.

Great Britain will send a "long" reply to the French government dealing with all the points raised by M. Poincaré the French Premier, in his recent note. The reply also will strongly re-state Great Britain's position.

It is understood that the note will intimate that Great Britain cannot advise Germany to withdraw her passive resistance decree absolutely and unconditionally, and that it also will remind France that British interests do not permit of waiting indefinitely.

In effect, the situation seems to be that Premier Baldwin still is seeking to surmount the difficulties of the situation without endangering an open break with France, and it is supposed Belgium is engaged in trying to find means for bringing together the divergent views of her allies.

No further development is expected pending publication of the British note and France's response to Great Britain's fresh argument.

Triplets Are Born by Caesarian Operation

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 10.—What is believed to be a rare case in medical history occurred here today when triplets were born to Mrs. Margaret Isherwood after a Caesarian operation had been performed. The attending physicians, Dr. Carrie D. Epstein and Dr. Sara M. Edwards, declared that it was the first time within their knowledge that the triplets had been delivered by this means.

The triplets, all boys, were reported in excellent health, as was their mother, Mrs. Isherwood, the wife of Subordinate Howard Isherwood.

(By The Associated Press.) ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN AT MARTINSBURG W. Va., Aug. 9.—President Coolidge and his official party, who left Washington tonight to lay Warren G. Harding to rest in Marion tomorrow, reached Martinsburg at 11:50 o'clock, eastern standard time.

It was officially announced that the special train would be slowed down so that the party would reach its destination at 1:30 p. m., instead of noon. After receiving some of his fellow travelers in his private car tonight, Mr. Coolidge retired at 11:25 p. m.

Virginia To Pay Last Tribute To Dead President

(By The Associated Press.) RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 9.—Bent with the grief that is a nation's sorrow and silently reverent beneath the pall that hangs like a heavy cloud over the greatest people on earth, Virginia, oldest sister in the great family of states, will add her tears, her sob and her prayers to the mighty swell of sadness that will sweep its final vast wave over America tomorrow, when Warren Harding pauses for his final rest in the shade of eternity.

Her heart pierced with the great shaft of sorrow that rents it point in Marion and casts its shadow of gloom across the vast country whose son has crushed beneath the weight of a nation's burden, yet enshrouded in the cloak of a nation's love, the Old Dominion will render her tribute, as her sisters render theirs, in reverent prayer and in silent grief. Her tears, mingling with those of Ohio and all the other sisters, will bathe the memory of the gentle, kindly son whose work was finished even in the fulness of a life of service to his fellowmen.

On the steps of the State Capital—the structure which in other days was the seat of another government, now perished—a group of men who have the flaming torch through the black smoke of a foreign battle field and latter thrust it into the hands of him whose passing the nation mourns, will gather tomorrow to render a last solemn, sad tribute to the dead chieftain. This simple service will be conducted by the American Legion.

By proclamation of Governor E. Lee Trinkle, the day is set aside as a day of prayer. Churches throughout the state will conduct services for the noble leader, ruthlessly removed by the hand of death. In the homes, where the pall has hung since the fearful, fateful news was flashed from the Golden Gate a week ago, simple, silent and solemn tribute will be paid to Warren Harding.

Business establishments, most of them draped in the colors which attest the nation's sorrow, will remain silent and somber as the eyes of a hundred million people turn tearfully toward the little cemetery in Marion where the last sad rites will be held where Warren Harding, the man, is surrounded, once more by his friends and neighbors who will gather to say a last good-bye to him.

Banks will not open in Richmond tomorrow. Motion Picture theaters and other places of amusement will be closed until after the funeral in Marion. Only those business establishments whose work is essential will continue in operation, and even these will pause at the funeral hour for a brief tribute of silence to the departed chief.

Such is the love of Virginia for the son of Ohio, who was loaned to the nation for great service and great honor. Clad in mourning, with tears in her eyes and only sadness and grief in her heart, Virginia will join the nation in the last sad tribute to a beloved leader.

BYXS BELMONT HOME

(By Chicago Tribune Service.) NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has sold her former town house at 477 Madison avenue, corner of 51st street to Arthur Brisbane, the editor. The mansion, estimated to be worth $500,000, is one of the well known residences of the city, and long was familiar in the social calendar. The house has been closed for the last five years, but during Mrs. Belmont's occupancy, it was the notably the reception Mrs. Belmont gave in honor of Comstock, the daughter, shortly after she became Duchess of Marlborough.

Mrs. Belmont, former wife of Wm. K. Vanderbilt, had the house built from special plans. Its interior has often been reproduced in architectural journals, for its Georgian style, which leads to a gallery where much of her entertaining was done. Mr. Brisbane will let the house, it is understood, until expiration of leases on adjoining property he has bought permits fruition of his ultimate plans.

HANDLING OF GERMAN MARKS BECOMES BURDEN

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—American tourists, who for a while enjoyed the experience of handling millions of marks daily, have begun to depart for other lands in great numbers rather than endure the inconveniences caused by the current money shortage which was brought about by the inability of the government to supply the demands of the falling mark.

Many Americans who had become tired of the novelty and who had been planning for two or three days to leave Germany were unable to do so today as it was impossible for them to realize on their checks.

Father Of 9 Slain; Woman Is Sought

Carnegie Steel Superintendent Found Shot and Stabbed to Death in Motor.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 10.—Charles P. Laird, superintendent of the rolling mills of the Carnegie Steel Company, at Homestead, Pa., was found shot to death in an automobile near Laird's body was seated bolt upright in the car with the right foot on the brakes. The car and its dead occupant were discovered by Earl Goodnough of Erie, a camper in that section, on his way to work at the General Electric plant.

Two bullet wounds in the head and one in the chest, made by steel-jacketed 30 calibre balls fired from an automatic revolver of German make, and a penknife thrust over the heart and a slightly discolored right eye, led authorities to believe Laird may have been murdered by a woman.

The county authorities with the State police, scout the theory that the motive of the murder was robbery and, although no money was found on the body, the man's valuable ring and stickpin were intact, as was his gold watch, the gift of employees of Liberty Mills in 1920.

Late this afternoon Sheriff Brown and Assistant County Detective Rukoske questioned Mrs. Margaret Schepner, of Pittsburgh, sister of Miss Alice Cronin, head nurse in the Liberty Mills at Homestead. Mrs. Schepner admitted Miss Cronin had been with Laird yesterday, leaving Cambridge Springs at 2:30 o'clock to come Erie. She returned to Cambridge Springs at 11 o'clock last night.

Laird, who was a widower and the father of nine children, came to the Boy Scout camp at Elk Creek Tuesday afternoon in company with W. H. Packer, Rev. Mr. Downs and Thomas Stewart, the first of whom was from Munhall and the others from Homestead. All of the men were interested in Boy Scout work, and the slain man was a member of the Boy Scouts Council, as well as a prominent member of the K of C.

Authorities discovered that Laird left Camp Fischer Tuesday night in an automobile belonging to Packer, saying he was going to Cambridge Springs. Mr. Packer said Laird had borrowed his machine to drive two Pittsburgh women to Cambridge Springs. The machine was proceeding north in Hall avenue toward Camp Fischer when the shooting occurred.

Indications are that Laird knew of the impending trouble, as the car skidded about eighteen feet. Pulled out of the worn tracks with its front wheels toward the side of the roadway. The door next to the driver was open when the body was discovered this morning.

Late this afternoon Sheriff Brown brought Mrs. Schepner and Miss

Cronin to Erie to be questioned. It also was said that the arrest of a man at the camp Tuesday was expected momentarily.

Good Morning Judge!

A warrant against R. L. McGee, charging him with forgery, was this morning dismissed after a hearing in the police court. There was no direct evidence against the man. He is said to have secured a check in some way which was made out to S. E. Hook the amount being $3 and to have cashed it at a local merchant's store. The check came back on McGee but he did not remember ever receiving it.

Pete Jones, colored, was fined $11 and costs for violating the traffic ordinance.

J. F. Terrell was fined $51 and costs for violation of the Mapp act.

The case of Elisha Daly charged with an assault on Harry Berman, was continued.

Jack Tobin drew a fine of $5 and costs for hobnobbing his way here from Lynchburg, having been caught last night by L. L. Wilson, special agent for the Southern Railway.

Doc Pruitt was fined $21 and costs for speeding and also faces charges of not having the proper license tags and with not having a permit.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Lester, wife of Thomas H. Lester, a prominent farmer of the Sutherland community died unexpectedly at about midnight last night. She was 74 years of age and while she had been in bad health for the past several years her death at this time had been entirely unanticipated. She appears to have succumbed suddenly to a stroke of apoplexy.

Mrs. Lester was a daughter of John McCormick, of Halifax, and was born in that country. During her long life in the neighborhood of Sutherland she had been an active worker in the Sutherland Methodist church and was widely known as an exemplary Christian character. Of recent years, however, failing health had not permitted to continue the work to which she was devoted.

The funeral services will be held at eleven o'clock Saturday morning from the Sutherland Methodist church and interment will be made in the church cemetery. Besides her husband, she leaves three daughters and two sons. Mrs. L. D. Bailey, of Scottsburg, Mrs. C. C. Chaney, of Birch, and Miss Pearl Lester, of Sutherland, and J. T. Lester, of Sutherland, and Dr. E. S. Lester, formerly of the county, but now of Norfolk.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 10, 1923

THE FINAL RITES

Today's final rites at Marion, Ohio, the commitment of the late President Warren G. Harding, brings to an end a week unusual in American history. That week has been devoted to the outpouring of a nation's grief and the passage of a dark shadow from the Pacific slope to the national capital as the funeral train bearing Mr. Harding made its way east and then finally back to Ohio the home state. It is probable that nowhere in history will be found a more lasting and sustained tribute paid to any one man—certainly no man in this country has been more widely spoken of or depicted in the public prints as has the one man who is today being buried, not as the President of a great nation, but as a citizen of a great democracy. Today will witness the greatest tribute of all—a silent hour in the national life, a pause in the work-day activities of more than one hundred million people who with one accord will visualize the man who 29 months ago was inaugurated President and who during office was guided by the principle of duty and good will which endeared him as a man to the American people. These will be the last earthly rites and after today President Harding will be but a memory and the public mind will turn to other things. Danville will pay its tribute to the late President with thousands of other communities and will cease its labors in respect to his memory and while far distant from the Ohio town upon which the eyes of the nation today are centered it will be nonetheless sincere earnest and prayerful—typical of the nation's sorrow in the loss of its leader.

POISON FUMES

We live in an ocean of air. The same as fish live in an ocean of water. In the air ocean we are, to make a joyful comparison, like lobsters crawling along the bottom of the water ocean. Birds sit through the air like fish through the water. The air we breathe is more vital in many ways than water we drink or food we eat. You can go weeks without food, days without water, before dying. But shut off your air supply and death comes in a matter of minutes. Close your mouth punch your nostrils tight, and let the idea come practically—what happens when your air supply is shut off? For as we would know, water tainted with a drop of poison water. We take air for granted, and so to considerable extent, to insure the purity of food and water. But when it comes to the quality of even more important life, our most of us are careless negligent. Impure air lessens our power of resisting disease. The air in the average city is impure to a frightful extent, containing disease germs and fragments of filth, glass, rubber tires and similar destroyers of the delicate lung tissues.

Most deadly of all is the poison gas generated by the millions of autos, a gas so deadly that it kills in a few minutes if a man starts his automobile in a garage with the door shut. Air in the neutral state is pure. Man adds the impurities of himself. When our lungs become weak the doctor sends us to the pure air of the mountains. Out there is a fighting chance for life, for recovery from the impure air of civilization.

Now, impure air of city life doesn't starve us to a decline by any means. But unquestionably we all have better health if we could do our breathing in more healthful environments.

The next best bet is to get as much fresh air as possible, especially by taking outdoor walks, breathing deeply, sleeping with windows open. The air outdoors may be impure, but it is purer than stale air that has been breathed over and over inside the house and thereby become loaded with poisons cast off by people's lungs.

Summer is fresh air season. Take a dozen long, deep breaths whenever you think of it.

THE NEW PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM

(Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.)
Only the sheer pressure of mortuary amenities is keeping the lid down on the country's seething curiosity concerning the inside of President Coolidge's head. For the mental furniture of that head and the momentous issues domestic and foreign if President Coolidge holds one view of our foreign relations, it means that Secretary Hughes will remain foreign minister and our attitude to the reparations tangle, to Russian recognition, to the League of Nations and to the world court will undergo little change. If he holds another view, either Secretary Hughes will resign or he will advise the state department's program to fit the views of the new executive. In either case there will be important political reverberations—both in this country and abroad.

One of the most important aspects of Europe would radically affect the course of the Franco-British reparations dispute. It would radically affect the President's standing in his own party. The foreign policy of his predecessor was colored by two major considerations—the "no entanglement" construction that was put on the verdict of the 7,000,000 and the necessity of holding the isolationists in line for the renunciation in 1921. To a certain extent both considerations are in force as applied to the foreign policy of Coolidge—if it is his ambition to be the party's 1924 standard-bearer. But he does not intend to put himself in the strongest position for nomination in 1924. President Coolidge must carry out precisely the foreign and domestic programs that he has inherited from his predecessor. There is no indication before President Harding's death that his foreign and domestic program was making for the certainty of his renomination. In so far as that was accepted as certain, it was not so much as a spontaneous outcome of his administration but as an act of party necessity. The political necessity for nominating Coolidge in 1924 will not exist if he is nominated perhaps in 1925. He has not yet executed Harding's policies without change, but because he has courageously improved and addressed to the changes in public opinion that have taken place since the main body of Harding's policies was given form, will be a question of immediate concern for President Coolidge as soon as the present hour of tribute is over. Not to change them at all would be to change them in 1924 a position of political inactivity that would eliminate him as the nominee as certainly as Harding himself would have been eliminated were it not for the tactical necessity of having a successor.

The practical certainty that, despite the "carry on" statement of his first day as President Coolidge will find it necessary to bring to the administration a foreign policy that is a new definition, accounts for the public's extraordinary curiosity as to what plans and thoughts are formed and forming in the President's daily calm, still, quiet. The definition of his views cannot long be delayed. They are awaited with the same keen public interest that attaches to a new President's first message to Congress.

LYNCH DODGES TITLE BATTLE

By BILLY EVANS
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—What has become of Bantamweight Champion Joe Lynch?
At little over a year ago, Lynch regained the bantam title by his knockout of Johnny Buff. Since that time Lynch has put the crown among camphor balls and played hide and seek with every logical contender.

As far as Lynch is concerned the bantam title has been a rather flimsy honor. He won it in 1920 from Pete Herman. The following year Herman regained the championship. Herman in turn lost it to Johnny Buff, who was beaten by Lynch.

Right now the idea with Lynch is to have and to hold. Naturally, the best way to hold the championship is not to take any unnecessary risks.

As a result of Lynch's inactivity, the bantam class has picked color for over a year. Lynch in many ways is an unusual champion. He is a bit of an in-and-outer. When Lynch is at the top of his game he is a great fighter. When he has an off night he is a third-rate could look worse.

Two Local Contenders
Two bantams of class, Joe Burman and Carl Tremaine, are entitled to underwrite Lynch. The latter has never been looked with favor on Tremaine. The Cleveland fighter is at his best against rangy boys like Lynch. As a result, Tremaine's chances for a chance at the title have been fruitless.

It looks very much as if Joe Burman would get first call on a title bout. Burman is a crafty little fighter and Lynch will have his hands full against the Chicagoan.

Lynch is far from invincible. He doesn't stand out in his class as does Henry Leonard or Jack Dempsey. He is a great even great, and ordinary when ordinary. His record reveals his lack of consistency.

In 1915 he lost to Pat Moore and Jimmy White. The following year Jimmy White received another victory. Joe Lynch in 1921 lost his title to Herman in a 15-round bout and also dropped a 12-round decision to Phil O'Dowd. Other fighters to have a verdict over Lynch are Terry Martin and Jack White.

Rivals Are Content
Both Burman and Tremaine are confident they can defeat the champion if given the opportunity.

Joe Lynch has agreed to give the fight big bet in which he engaged.

It is a rather unusual fact that Burman has been Tremaine's most bitter opponent. The latter has been the only one to beat all of them. Tremaine, with the experts divided as to the winner.

Burman probably has engaged in more bouts than any bantamweight in the ring. When he has fought Lynch at least as even bet that a new champ will be crowned.

DRAKES BRANCH, August 10.—(Grapevine Wireless).—Our government spends millions annually in surveys and investigations in the "trades and industries," including crop reports and vital statistics. At Washington is maintained the Bureau of Standards, and how the balance of the service is available to all citizens of the country upon request. Manufacturers marketing their goods and services are given the opportunity to get together information on trade conditions through research departments to develop intelligent selling plans. The business sea is charted, shoals and reefs are plainly marked. The voyage is undertaken with a high degree of safety unless one travels haphazard without a compass.

It is sound practice to make an occasional survey of one's personal activities to see how the balance sheet works out. The following communication from one of the 35,000 readers of The Bee, received today, will serve as a guide to those desiring to weigh their short-comings and measure the efficiency.

THE YELLOW SEVEN.

ONEA SERVICE INC. 1923
BEGIN HERE TODAY

Captain John Hewitt is Commissioner of the last of the British North Borneo. His beautiful sister, Monica Viney, is engaged to marry Pennington, a detective. Pennington is detailed by the government to apprehend Chal-Hung, leader of the Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits. Pennington goes to visit James Varney in his bungalow at the head of the Tembak River. Varney receives a threatening message from The Yellow Seven. Pennington warns Varney to be careful.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Pennington produced a rubber pouch and began rolling a cigarette. "I don't know what to think. All I can say is that, by every rule of the game, the arch-bandit ought to be dead."

"I rather gather," said Varney slowly, "that Chal-Hung is a little out of the ordinary."

Pennington clasped both hands over his knee and looked hard at the wall.

"He is," he admitted. "There's something horribly uncanny about the merchant, and I only hope the Commissioner realizes it as much as I do."

"How long a time would you consider sufficient to presume him dead?"

Pennington grinned. "Not long," he announced more cheerfully. "You see, Chal-Hung—to give the devil his due—has a decided sense of humor; not the refined, harmless article that you or I lay claim to, I admit, but still a sense of humor! I flatter myself that I know enough of the gentleman to be certain that he won't be able to resist for long the desire to let me know that he's eluded me."

Varney lifted the siphon from the table and thoughtfully sprayed a large spider that was in the act of crossing the floor.

"By the bye," he said, "you didn't by any chance tell anybody you were coming here?"

"Good heavens, yes! I told Monica and the others my probable plans, for one thing; and, for another, I instructed my men to follow me on here if they wanted anything or sensed anything of importance they thought I ought to know."

"That accounts for it?"

"Accounts for what?"

The trader dived a hand into his tunic and produced Hewitt's letter folded round the piece of card.

"Here's your evidence right enough," he told him. "It floated in from the darkness barely half-an-hour ago."

Chinese Pennington spread the document out on the table and surveyed the Yellow Seven as a man might survey a long-lost brother.

"Great snakes!" he murmured presently, looking up into the other's eyes. "I fancy it was meant for me, all right!"

Varney appeared relieved. "There happened to be a message with that bit of cardboard. It was given to my servant, verbally, to the effect that if I admitted you or helped you in any way—my number was up!"

Pennington's jaw dropped. "Have you any idea where your boy put my things?"

Varney took his guest by both shoulders and forced him back into the chair.

"Whatever damage there's likely to be is done already, and if you fancy I'm going to allow a pack of dirty thieves to dictate to me what I entertain—you're very much mistaken. I merely told you as a matter of interest. Chal-Hung, light to enable him to see that Var-

ney's dog had not stirred. The sound came again, this time from the patch of blackness that indicated the opening to the passage. Pennington loosened the button of his hip-pocket and walked deliberately toward the patch. His keen ear accustomed to the slightest sound, all his senses alert, he gathered that someone was retreating softly as he advanced. He stepped a couple of paces backward and looked at the dog. The animal blinked friendlyly up at him, squirmed into a more comfortable position—and resumed its slumbers.

Pennington winked ominously at the night, lit the cigarette he had just made, and strode whistling to his room. He closed the door carefully after him and turned the key. From the room, humming softly about the room, a burlesque lamp burning merrily up a table by the bed. To a chance listener, it would have appeared that "he who sees to the dark" had at last succumbed to fatigue and was in the act of undressing; but in reality, Pennington was indulging in the amusing pastime of picking perfectly useless things up in one part of the room and putting them down in another. He removed his boots and, knocking out the light, stretched himself at full length in his clothes behind the mosquito-curtains.

Varney's spare room contained no window, obtaining its ventilation from the space between where the partition walls finished and the rafters began, and Pennington, tying the curtains at the head-end of the bed in a knot behind him, secured his eyes upon a narrow lattice that allowed a dash-off the rough edges of timbering of the wall immediately at his side. This was the wall dividing the room from the passage; there were two other partitions that rose higher than the rest, and the fourth was the one that backed on the room in which the trader himself was sleeping.

He had been in that position for roughly half-an-hour when he knew rather than heard that something was moving about within about the building. Pennington's movement ceased altogether, and the man on the bed caught the sound of measured breathing that seemed to come from somewhere close at his side. Something passed softly along the wood-work, surfaced upon it, scratched its surface faintly—and the breathing sounded more rapidly in the region of the roof.

Most things are a question of habit. Happenings such as these, which might seem wholly alien to the building, were familiar to the man on Chinese Pennington like a book. Accordingly, while a black shadow—the slightest degree darker than the wall itself—did slowly downward, Pennington did not trouble to move a muscle until his lower extremity came well within reach. And then one arm shot out with surprising suddenness, his fingers closed upon a broad knob and the corner of the bed collapsed in a heap on the floor.

"Chang-Het," said Pennington softly. "I have been waiting for you for many hours."

He had slipped from the bed and was groping for the electric switch he habitually carried. The form, even which he knew moved convulsively and flattened out, nearly causing him to pitch forward on to his face. Pennington focused the torch. The bulb displayed a faint glimmer which dropped immediately into a dull, red glow. He swore softly under his breath and shifting his knee until they rested upon either arm of the Oriental, struck a match.

A second later he was upon his feet tugging up the chimney of the burlesque lamp. The flame flickered and shot up and he snatched the glass back into place.

Chang-Het lay sprawled on the wooden floor—an inch of steel point protruding upward between his shoulders.

When Varney stretched his tattooed arms and yawned.

"Time for bed, old son."

Pennington, who was leaning on the rail, glanced back over his shoulder.

"Tired?"

The other nodded. "Taken all round, it's been a rather trying day. You won't be in too much of a hurry to get away in the morning?"

"Can't say. It depends on circumstances—and Mr. Chal-Hung. You won't mind if I hang about here for a spell. I know where to find my room."

Varney smiled.

"Do just as you like, of course. I'm not going to suggest that you're feeling uneasy about recent events; but in any case, Chang would raise Cain long before any outsider could reach the house." He bent down and patting the creature's shaggy head.

Pennington held out his hand. "Good night, Varney. It's done me a world of good seeing you so fit and flourishing. I never worry; it wastes so much time! But I try to imagine I can think better when half the world's asleep."

He stopped there—rolling and smoking interminable cigarettes, and each time he struck a fresh match the sound that was curled in a case chair jerked up its head. Presently Pennington extinguished the lamp.

As he came back to his original position a sudden sound attracted his attention. The moon, sailing gaily toward a cloud-bank, threw sufficient light to enable him to see that Var-

ney's dog had not stirred. The sound came again, this time from the patch of blackness that indicated the opening to the passage. Pennington loosened the button of his hip-pocket and walked deliberately toward the patch. His keen ear accustomed to the slightest sound, all his senses alert, he gathered that someone was retreating softly as he advanced. He stepped a couple of paces backward and looked at the dog. This Little World

LONDON
BY MILTON BRONNER
(Special to The Bee.)

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Londoners are confronted by a war which they feared would happen all during the war—an invasion by Germans. But this time, instead of coming with guns, rifles and swords, the invaders are carrying aprons, napkins and dress suits. For this invasion is one by restaurant managers and waiters.

Every once in a while there is a change in the managerial job in a well-known restaurant. A Briton goes out and a German comes in. Then some of his compatriots come over and get back the jobs they had before the war.

The British are alarmed at the German invasion and London papers are asking why, with so many unemployed in England, German waiters should be permitted to replace Britpress of Russia attended some social function and how King Manuel (long ago of Portugal) attended the lawn tennis championship games.

Speaking of kings, I heard a good one the other day. A Swedish newspaper reporter called up the royal palace to get some news about a big reception for whom he asked were out.

"Well, who the devil are you?" asked the reporter angrily.

"Oh, I'm only the king!"

Whereupon, not being an American reporter, he dropped the phone and lost a chance that comes only once in a million years.

Seen on the Strand the other day: A "queue" of people patiently waiting for a bus. In the van is a big American woman seeing London. Bus arrives. Little Cockney, disregarding usual rules of British courtesy, dodges ahead of American woman and proceeds to climb steps to enter bus.

Yankee woman, right on her heels, puts her hands under his arms and helps him up.

"Uppy, upp," says she sweetly. "Men first."

INDIANS WILL HONOR FRIEND

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Five thousand and Sioux Indians will do unique honor to a pale faced brother in the heart of the South Dakota prairie on August 19, when Rev. Dr. Edward Ashley, friend of Roosevelt and Custer, of Rain-in-the-Face and Sitting Bull and the long line of Dakotan braves, will round out his fiftieth year of service as a missionary among the Red Men.

Dr. Ashley is the sole survivor of the framers of the treaty of 1876 which opened the Black Hills country to gold seekers, stripping the Indians of their hunting grounds and incidentally leading to the Custer massacre at Little Big Horn. Later he was present on the Cheyenne River reservation during the Ghost Dance, or Messiah Craze, which culminated in the battle of Wounded Knee, where the Federal troops avenged the slaughter of Custer and his men. Still later it fell to his lot to lead to Christianization the Gaul, one of the chief participants in the Little Big Horn affair, of whom he gives testimony that "for the rest of his life he was a conscientious Christian."

As a boy, Dr. Ashley came to Michigan from England to practice the trade of carpenter. But the mission field attracted him, and within a few months he was on his way to the Dakotas where he entered service under the late Bishop Doane. In the ensuing thirty years his life was spent among the Indians, counseling and advising them, acting as intermediary for them in their relations with the government at Washington, serving on their tribal councils, ministering to their needs when they were ill, acting as peace maker, drilling them in the ways of civilization. He has been the personal friend and confidant of such noted chiefs as White Bear, Bad Medicine, Sitting Bull, Rain-in-the-Face, Sitting Bull, Bull Dull Knife, Gault and others. He has mastered half a dozen Indian dialects, and for his services in preserving the language of the Yanktons, Sissetons and other tribes, he has been honored with the degree of LL.D. from the University of South Dakota.

On the occasion of the anniversary which will mark also the meeting of the Niobrara Convocation of Christianized Indians, of which Dr. Ashley is the Archdeacon, there will assemble 5,000 Sioux who live under the jurisdiction of Rt. Rev. Hugh L. Burleson, Episcopal Bishop of South Dakota. From a radius of five hundred miles around the Indians will come to White Horse, which is twenty miles from the nearest railroad station, in automobiles, in prairie schooners, on horseback, or in primitive conveyance made from tepee poles, and in the heart of the Great American Desert will erect a city of tepees, in the center of which will be thrown up an open-air tabernacle and altar.

Here for four days these Christian Indians will discuss the business affairs of their church, make their annual donations for its support, consider tribal affairs, and on the final day of the Convocation, will give fitting observation of the life of the nation. Dr. Ashley is the man whose life has been devoted to their temporal as well as their spiritual welfare. In large measure, it will be a final meeting of the past and the present, for the Indian whom Mr. Ashley knew when he first went among them has passed on. This will be a meeting of farmers and herders, of mechanics and shop keepers, even of bankers and wealthy business men, for the Christianized Sioux have finally been absorbed in the civilization of the great west. Those who come in leather leggings, buckskin and feathered headpiece will simply emphasize the fact.

ISAC BOYLES TAKEN BACK TO DALLAS, TEXAS

U. S. Deputy Marshal Fred Brown left last night with Isaac Boyles, alleged mail swindler, for Dallas, Tex., where Boyles is under indictment in the federal court.

Boyles was captured here last week by Sergeant Martin following receipt of a telegram from federal authorities who, in some manner, had learned that Boyles was in this city.

Boyles stayed in Danville about ten days before his identity was suspected. He made his living selling automobile polish on the streets. At one time he was taken before Mayor Woodling because the tag on his automobile was out of date. He was unable to pay the fine that was assessed and had to put up his car as security for several days until he could enough money to redeem it.

At one time Boyles is said to have been a wealthy man, a prominent business man of Dallas, Texas, where he was teacher in one of the largest Bible classes in the city. Boyles was born in North Carolina and in early manhood became a Baptist preacher. It is said that 18 years ago he preached in Danville.

It is said that Boyles was connected with a gang of swindlers who used the U. S. mails to rob the public, in this manner securing over half a million. Deputy Marshal Brown said yesterday that if Boyles could be induced to talk he would implicate a number of other men at present suspected.

SCOTCHMEN LIKE TO BET

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Betting among the thrifty Scotchmen is done on a scale that has shocked members of the House of Commons, men who are accustomed to deal with millions of pounds of the government's money every year.

A Glasgow bookmaker admitted to the House committee on betting, appointed to investigate the possibilities of the government placing a tax on the betting, told the committee that he had bet on the outcome of a race in an average of $25,000 a day, or more than $8,000,000 a year in bets. This particular bookmaker operates a credit account system in established shops and his business comes within the law.

Slugfest Ends In Deadlock; Winston Drops Two

Grandstand Gaff

No umpire will announce the batter in organized baseball; no player will arise out of the dugout to protest a close decision on his slide into any base; no ball will float over the fence as some Ruthian slugger jaunts around the bases; no pitcher will be enthused over his victory or dejected over his defeat—for this afternoon America's greatest pastime will mark time as the dead slugfest of the world's greatest government is laid to rest in his home town of Marion, Ohio.

The slugfest yesterday was a reversal from the proceedings of Wednesday. Five runs totalled the pitching contest of Wednesday while 20 tallies were chalked off in the no decision tilt of yesterday.

As was the game of Wednesday it was featured by the pitching—poor pitching. Five twirlers dug their cleats in the hulloek between home and second before game was called on account of darkness.

Hitting was hit less, only 10 extra base hits were made—three circuit clouts and seven double deckers. Lefty Ellington led the extra base blows with a homer and two doubles. Fredy Dorman, Frank Kane, Ted Smith and Little Brother Thrasher led the hitting as far as averages are concerned.

Following the slugfest by the Posters in the second frame any topic but baseball was popular in the grandstand. Notwithstanding the reality of the Danville club to climb out of the deep hole fans were dejected to say the least. Nevertheless, the Murphys kept fighting when Big Gibson started back firing and hitting about two outs in the fourth. The Danville club was in the "old reliable" Lefty Wilson was turned to the hulloek much to the delight of the fans. The visitors scored only once after his insertion.

Guy McWhorter, the twirler with the heavy arm, started the game for Danville and was hit hard by the visitors. He was relieved by the Duke of Somo in the fifth, who was not at all the Iron Man of old, but who held an apparent victory from Murphy's aggression.

Rube would not rather face a firing squad than the Danville hitters. He is no one to be hit hard though—shows how "mild" experience in the "always young" pitcher had had in having his "conscience" at the plate.

"Red" took the place of the outer garden for his four putouts. On one drive a fan yelled "break a leg!" Very unympathetic but it is the "on" thing except a surprise that will keep "Red" from getting them.

The return of Fredy Dorman has been awaited for a portion of the class ruling controversy, but there is another matter Fred should look over. There are rumors in the city.

cult that are plain, unvarnished mistakes, and although the season is nearing the final curtain, players of every club and fans of every city would delight in some officials who have the ability to make correct decisions on plays that are clear even to the batboys. Resco was waved out yesterday by Osborne although he had crossed first base several yards before the throw reached Meekin. The decisions were not one-sided but were "rotten" all the way around for both clubs.

That Herb Murphy has been playing the game according to the highest standards is the opinion of more than Danville fans and sport writers. The Durham scribe says anyone will have a hard job proving Murphy broke the class ruling knowingly. Opinions like these by a rival who plays the game on the square are appreciated by a manager whose code of ethics in baseball is of the highest. The Durham opinion.

The sporting editors' round the town are still commenting on Raleigh's pitcher which alleges that Herb Murphy played four class men. T. Smith Murphy, Leard and Harris are said to be the class men. Harris is alleged to have pitched 18 innings—light innings more than the league rule—for Richmond in 1921.

Raleigh we believe, will get nothing from its protest. The Capital will have a hard job proving that four class men—and that will have to be done before the games are thrown out.

There is also interesting to note that Harris has been in the league over two years and in all that time has not been regarded as a class man. President Bramham will eventually settle the argument, but he is out of town when he returns a decision will doubtless soon be announced.

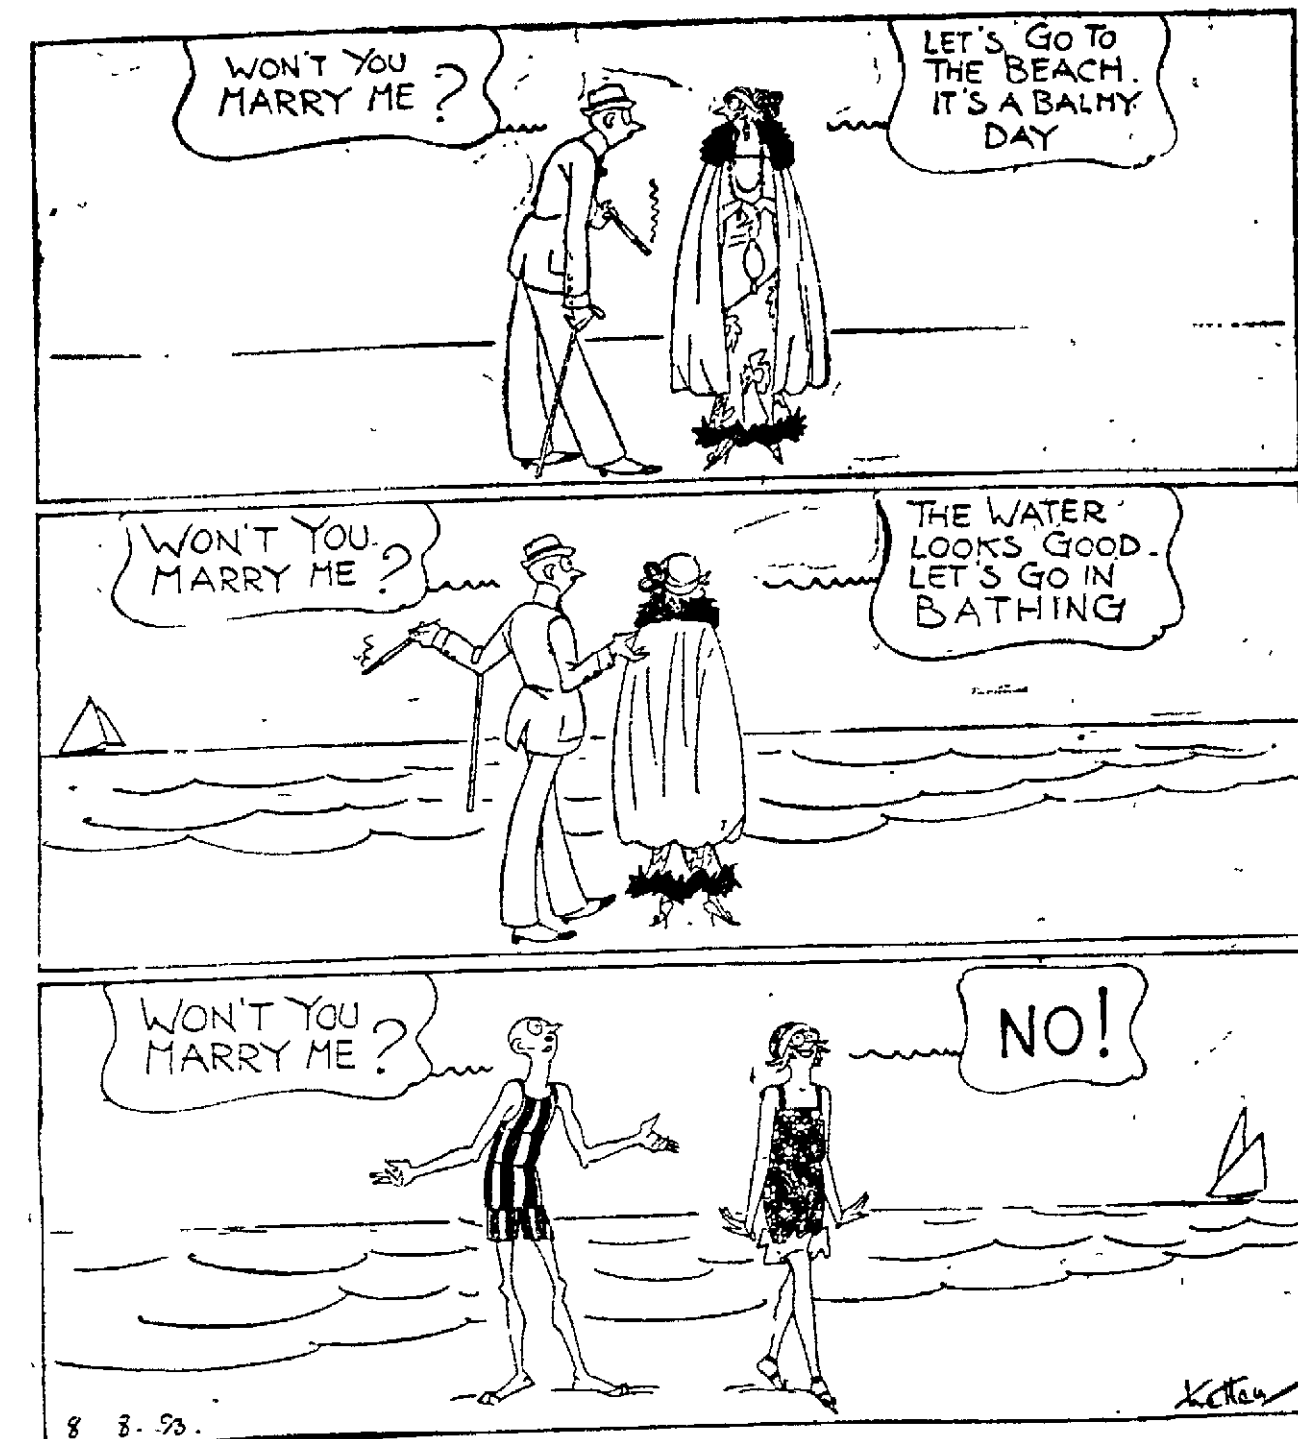

As no games will be played today the Virginia will be in a double bill with Greensboro in Greensboro on Saturday. Greensboro yesterday won their first double-header of the season from the Tame—here's hoping and for that matter believe it, it will be their last.

Erratic Contest Called In Ninth

After a slugfest and erratic game in which five pitchers participated yesterday's game was called because of darkness with the score standing 10 each.

The High Point team played errorless ball, but the two pitchers who saved them from defeat, for the pitchers on both sides "had nothing," as the phrase goes. An exception should be made as to Wilson for Danville and Ellington for the visitors, for while both were scored on, they stopped the slaughter and fought the batting bee to an indecisive end.

Danville is credited with 14 hits, but these were good for 26 total bases, including two home runs and 12 two-base hits, while the 14 earned by the visitors off Gibson, Ellington and Wilson were good for 18 bases.

The fielding of the Danville team was unusually ragged, but fortunately none of the errors really cost anything for the runs scored on both sides were pounded in. The Tobaccoists got four bases on balls to two for the opponents. Pitcher Ellington was the batting star of the day, however, his two hits in two up innings, including a homer and a two-bagger. For the visitors, Kane and G. Thrasher were the most notable sluggers. Kane's trio of bingles including a circuit clout, while G. Thrasher credited with four hits in five times at bat.

But with the slugfest and the see-saw score and the errors by the locals, there were two notable plays, both of them throws and both by Danville outfielders.

In the first innings with K. e. a very fast man, on first and two out, L. Thrasher drove a long single to right field. Ted Smith scooped it up and by a perfect throw to Murphy from deep right, he nailed the runner cleanly at third, retiring the side scoreless. The other came in the fifth. Gus Thompson had opened the inning with a single and McWhorter followed with a home run. Irby was out on a fly to Trexler, but Overton smashed a long single to center. Regan, after fielding the ball cleanly, lined it directly into Cochlin's hand and Thompson walked into him at the plate. Both were great plays.

Besides his fine throw, Ted Smith scored Danville's first brace of runs by his home run smash to the schoolhouse alley.

Kane opened the sixth inning with a long drive to right center and tried to stretch it to a two-sacker. Regan fielded the ball quickly and lined it to Dorman, covering second, in time to retire the runner, but Dorman let the ball get through him.

In the second inning the Pointers drove Gibson from the box with five hits that had netted them four runs before. Manager Murphy displayed his brains and sent Ellington in to Overton on second, Kane hit his home run, making the total for the inning six runs. A hit, an error, two passes and a sacrifice gave the Pointers two more runs in the third and two in the fourth. The visitors got off to an early lead in the opening inning when they scored four runs off the veteran Bill Doak, who was unable to get the visitors' hitters during the last four innings. The visitors got off to an early lead in the opening inning when they scored four runs off the veteran Bill Doak, who was unable to get the visitors' hitters during the last four innings. The visitors got off to an early lead in the opening inning when they scored four runs off the veteran Bill Doak, who was unable to get the visitors' hitters during the last four innings.

Meanwhile Danville had accumulated but three runs, all due to home runs. In their fourth, however, they scored two runs off the visitors' pitcher, who was out on a fly to Trexler, a pass for Leard. Resco's two-bagger, Cochlin's long single to left, Ellington's double to right and Dorman's two-bagger to left of center netted five runs and ten men batted in the inning. After Regan had opened the fifth with a two-bagger, Ellington's double to left, Leard's long single to center, and Dorman's two-bagger to left of center netted five runs and ten men batted in the inning. After Regan had opened the fifth with a two-bagger, Ellington's double to left, Leard's long single to center, and Dorman's two-bagger to left of center netted five runs and ten men batted in the inning.

Danville overcame the two-run lead in their half of the sixth off Ellington. A single by Dorman, Murphy's two-bagger and Ted Smith's sacrifice fly, followed by Trexler's two-bagger, turned the lead. It was really two dark to play any more when at the end of the ninth with the count knotted after three unproductive innings for both teams, Umpire Morgan called the game.

One of the most flagrant umpirical errors ever recalled here was that of Field Umpire Osborne in the fourth. Leard had singled and Resco grounded sharply to Meekin, who forced Leard by his throw to Schmidt, but when Schmidt returned the ball to Meekin, the umpire waved Resco out, although he had passed third by two steps. It is probably regrettable that the umpire's decision, but would not recall it.

GIANTS LOSE IN LISTLESS GAME OF 14 INNINGS

(By The Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—Pitcher Lou North's single in the 15th inning won one of the weirdest major league ball games ever played here, in which the Cardinals defeated the league leaders, the Giants, 1 to 0. McGraw sent in six pitchers and the same number worked on the hill for the locals, the most effective being North who held the visitors' hitters during the last four innings. The visitors got off to an early lead in the opening inning when they scored four runs off the veteran Bill Doak, who was unable to get the visitors' hitters during the last four innings. The Giants played a listless game. In all, eight errors were charged to the league leaders while the Cardinals had four. Twenty players of the Giants got into the game, three more than Rickie trotted out. R. H. E. PITTSBURGH, Aug. 9.—Steady pitching by Babe Adams coupled with timely hitting gave Pittsburgh a six to two victory over Brooklyn today.

Fournier, Dodger first baseman, contributed the fielding feature of the game when he made a remarkable one hand catch of Maranville's liner and then threw quickly to second. Score by innings: R. H. E. Pittsburgh 000 002 000—2, 8, 2. Brooklyn 000 000 000—0, 0, 0. Dickerman, Decatur, Smith and Deberry; Adams and Gooch.

Elliott doubled in the 9th sent Callaghan, who ran for Miller, home with the winning run. Hartnett's homer tied the score the previous inning. Philadelphia having scored its lone tally in the fourth. Rixey also was effective except in the seventh inning when Southward's triple and a single by McInnis gave the Braves their only run. SPEED IS NEEDED BY BASE-RUNNERS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Speed alone does not make for clever base running, Maurice Archdeacon of the Rochester club of the International League is a striking example of that truth.

Archdeacon is one of the fastest men in the history of the game. Ty Cobb, one of the greatest base runners of all time, says Archdeacon "the fastest man that ever wore spiked shoes."

Other noted baseball experts have made similar statements to that of Cobb, yet, as a base runner, Archdeacon hasn't shone in the International League.

Last year it was reported that the Detroit club had acquired the services of Archdeacon. Manager Cobb practically admitted the deal had been put over. Apparently some hitch developed, because Archdeacon never joined the Tigers.

One rumor was that Manager Stallings peevish because Detroit had recalled Outfielder Fothergill at a critical stage of the International race called off all negotiations for Archdeacon on the part of the Tigers.

Archdeacon possesses great speed, but as yet he has not learned the art of getting a commanding lead off first base, also getting the break with the pitcher's delivery.

The best base runners in the majors are not always the fastest men. Good base running largely hinges on getting the break as the pitcher delivers the ball.

Most pitchers have a certain mannerism that always goes with the delivery of the ball to the batter. Heady base runners always familiarize themselves with such mannerisms.

No doubt had Archdeacon joined Detroit he would have made rapid advances as a base runner. As things stand his International League record is anything but brilliant from a base running standpoint.

Bulls Split Even With the Capitals

DURHAM, Aug. 9.—Durham and Raleigh divided honors in a double program here this afternoon, the Capitals blanking the locals in the first 6 to 0, while the Bulls captured the better end of a 6 to 2 score in the abbreviated game. Kiefer was in fine form today and after allowing the locals but five scattered hits in the first game, Manager Duncan considered him so good that he sent him in to twirl the second also but he was hit timely in the first three innings for a total of five runs and then yanked being replaced by Driver. Lloyd, a new pitcher for the locals, twirled the second game and did creditable work holding the visitors to five hits. He came here from the Appalachian League. The box scores follow:

Here are the last chapters in the stormy career of Pancho Villa. At the top is the bullet-riddled automobile he and his aides were riding in when the assassins attacked. Sixty-three shots hit the machine, 13 entering the rebel chieftain's body. At the bottom is the rude grave in the little cemetery at Parral where Pancho sleeps today.

Convicted of Using Movies To Ensnare Young Women

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Harry Krammer, 20, of Providence, R. I., was convicted today of having used the movies to lure girls to disreputable lives. His offense carries a possible penalty of 20 years in prison and $5,000 fine.

Krammer, young women testified, represented that he was attached to the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and desired the girls to go to Florida, where he purposed directing production of a picture.

Two of the girls said Krammer had suggested they lead immoral lives in return for a fixed weekly salary. The jury recommended mercy. Krammer was remanded until August 17 for sentence.

Sister Finds Joint Account Has Dwindled to $15.75, But Denies Girl Did Any Wrong.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Kathleen Barrett, twenty-three with merry blue eyes and bobbed auburn hair, is missing from her home. She went to her work as a stenographer at the office of a magazine in West 49th Street, Tuesday, July 31, and failed to return. Her sister, Peggy, with whom she lived, and her brother, Tom, were frantic. It was the first time she had spent a night away from her sister in her life. The next day, after a sleepless night, Peggy and her brother reported the disappearance to the police.

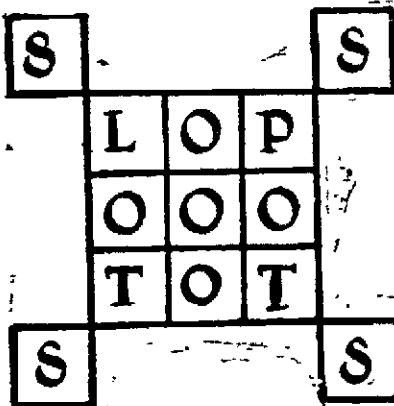

In a day or two they learned that a joint savings account of more than $12,000, against which either of the sisters could draw had dwindled to $15.75. The money was kept in two banks New Haven, Conn., where the girls previously had lived. All the money in one bank had been withdrawn by Kathleen, the banker told Peggy, and all but $15.75 from the other.

Ready to Forgive. "That must have been why Kathleen didn't come home," said her brother.

The drawing shows the correct letters in the squares (although other combinations of letters are possible). The words formed are slots, spots, tops, lop, lot, tot, pot and top.

Pottery 4,000 Years Old, Has Been Unearthed

(By The Associated Press.)

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 9.—Swedish archeologists have lately discovered an unusual number of relics that date back twenty to thirty centuries B. C., the latest findings being a tomb and shrine of a prehistoric worship of the Stone Age estimated to be about 4,000 years old.

This tomb is situated in Lacka-laenga, Skane, the most southerly province of Sweden, and until a short time ago it lay buried beneath ten different strata of earth. Built of large stone slabs, it has a central chamber about ten feet by five. Around it is a circular pavement of curious walks marked by stones. A considerable quantity of human and animal bones were found, together with flint daggers and spear heads.

But the most interesting discovery was that of about 7,000 fragments of ornamental vases, which had been thickly strewn outside the tomb. The shattering of these vases probably took place, according to the archeologists, in connection with heathen religious ceremonies. The shaping of the weapons and the ornamentation of the vases indicate an advanced civilization.

The Lacka-laenga tomb is estimated to be about 4,000 years old, but the Swedes have evidence that their country was inhabited at least 1,000 years before this tomb was built. A skeleton of that period, now on exhibition in the Gothenburg Museum, was found in an oyster bed, many miles inland from the present seacoast, at a point from which the sea began receding during the Stone Age.

Offers Awards For Best Community Health Work

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—As a result of a study of the health departments of 83 of the largest cities of the country, The American Public Health Association has announced its Health Association awards of awards in recognition of attainment and advancement of community health service. The status of the health work in different cities will be determined by personal surveys conducted by the association, and the agents of each city will be based upon a plan which will be presented for consideration and adoption at the fifty-second annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, to be held in New York City, Oct. 8-11.

This rating will take account of all health work which the city is doing, either through its health department or local non-official health organizations. The first series of awards will be made to cities of a population of 100,000 or over which show the most nearly adequate community health service as of January, 1924.

The development of the public health program has been so rapid in recent years that it is by no means easy for a local health officer to make sure that he is keeping up with the procession, or that he is doing the most important things first and doing them in the best way. In order to clarify the situation, the association, which is the official organization representing the public health workers of the United States, Canada, Mexico and Cuba, some three years ago appointed a committee on municipal health department practice of which Professor C. E. A. Thompson is chairman, and which includes Dr. C. V. Chapin of Providence, Dr. Haven Emerson of New York City, Dr. Donald B. Armstrong of the National Health Council, Professors Freeman and Frost of Johns Hopkins University, and Dr. L. R. Thompson of the United States Public Health Service. The report of this committee will be published this fall by the United States Public Health Service as a special bulletin.

It is the further purpose of the committee, in order to promote a spirit of generous rivalry between communities, to make similar awards in succeeding years.

Fifty Moros Slain Fighting Constabulary in Philippines

MANILA, Aug. 8.—Fifty Moros were killed and a number wounded and three members of the Constabulary were wounded in a pitched battle near Lake Lanao, on the Island of Mindanao, yesterday, it was reported to the Governor General's office today. No details were given.

Constabulary officers announced recently they were investigating reports that Moro religious fanatics were planning an attack on Constabulary troops in Lanao, to avenge the killing of rebel Moros in 1920 by Constabulary forces.

On the basis of the meager reports received Governor General Wood believes it possible some Moros who recently returned from Mecca, Arabia, the sacred city of the Mohammedans, may have organized armed bands for the purpose of driving all Christians from Lanao.

The REFEREE

By ALBERT APPLE

PULL

How powerful is this horse? How much can he haul? These questions have been pondered millions of times by farmers in almost countless generations, prior to a horse trade or purchase.

The pulling power of horses has always been more or less a matter of guesswork. Not any more. Davidson and Collins, professors at Iowa Agricultural College, invent a hydraulic wagon that registers exactly what a horse can do in harness. The idea is so simple, it's a wonder someone didn't think of it before. That's the way with an almost infinite number of other useful and profitable devices waiting to be discovered.

PATENT

The shortest patent application on record says: "I claim a patent for a screw with a gimlet point." Previously all screws had flat ends, like bolts. Nearly every individual of many generations used these connecting wires. So the idea occurred to one of them to taper the end like a gimlet point. Some similar improvement is waiting to be discovered, in connection with your job.

IMMIGRANTS

Thirty million immigrants have entered the United States since 1880. Uncle Sam has checked up the 14 million of these who still are living in the United States. In the Upper Mississippi Valley, same number in Middle Atlantic states, two million in New England, one million in the south, 500,000 on the Pacific Coast. The strongholds of the native-born are in the west and southwest.

YOU

The human body is an electrical machine, with the brain as the positive pole, the liver as the negative pole, and nerves serving as connecting wires. So theorizes Dr. George W. Crile, the wizard-surgeon who operates as well with one hand as the other.

All of us have noticed that the brain goes partly out of commission when the liver is sluggish. Maybe schools would make more headway if they educated our livers.

GIDEONS

Burlesque comedians have a line about people who will steal anything that's not nailed down. Theft is common, but most of us are surprised to learn that even the Bibles placed in hotel rooms sometimes are stolen. In some cases the Bibles are returned, a reading of them having converted the thieves, says J. Harry Humphreys of National Association of Gideons, Christian commercial travelers.

FAT

A Slovene with a name as long as a yardstick claims he's the fattest man in the world. He weighs 540 pounds.

We got thinking of the enormous meals he must have to eat, and their cost; the vast yardage of cloth necessary for his suits; his predicament in hot weather or when trying to scratch a mosquito bite on his ankle; and we perked up and decided that maybe we weren't so badly off, after all. Just imagine him trying to crawl under his car or find a seat in a crowded street car.

Guard Coolidge as He Strolls City's Streets

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—President Coolidge took a short walk before breakfast this morning. Accompanied only by secret service men, he left his temporary White House in the New Willard Hotel, went a few blocks along F street and returned by the same route 20 minutes later. Only a few pedestrians recognized him.

There were few names on the President's engagement list and it was said all of these had appointments and would call to pay their respects, further conferences on public function being deferred until after the funeral of President Harding.

Chief Justice Taft called on Mr. Coolidge. He hastened back to Washington from Murray Bay, Quebec, where he had gone for his vacation, to attend the Harding funeral ceremonies.

Senator Lodge, majority leader in the Senate, spent nearly an hour with President Coolidge. On leaving he said he discussed only the funeral plans, including appointment of the official Senate committee of six members. David S. Barry, Senate sergeant-at-arms, joined the conference. Senator Lodge later conferred with Senator Cummins, of Iowa. Senate President pro tem, on the personal of the committee.

THE BOK PEACE PRIZE

Of $100,000 is arousing much comment. We are not ready, as yet, to announce our plan for assuring world peace, but to be at peace with yourself we suggest a good bank account. To know you can meet emergencies, sickness, accident, and other extra demands on your resources, and have ready money with which to grasp opportunities, brings peace of mind, especially if you have dependents. Start a Peace Fund in the COM-MERCIAL BANK.
